WEEK OF AWFUL TRAGEDIES

EARL EICHOITZ DROWNED WHILE BATHING.

A Veteran Found Dead in a Stable Man Ground to Pieces on W. M. R. R.

Earl Eicholtz, aged 17, only son and child of Mrs. Laura Eicholtz, met his death on Memorial Day by drowning in Lake Mohogan at Peekskill, New York. The news reached here by telegram and gave this community a heart-rending shock. Earl was a boy of unusual brightness and promise. He was in his second year at the Peekskill Military Academy and had won a scholarship at the institution worth $400 a year. Later a bugler in the Academy graduating, Earl won that position giving him a salary of $500.

On Memorial Day he had taken part in the services at the Peekskill cemetery, and at the close of the exercises blew Taps over the veterans' graves. In the afternoon he went swimming with five companions in Lake Mohogan. He was a good swimmer but being seized with cramps sank without a struggle. His companions dived for him. The diving master of the academy came to their assistance and it was fifteen minutes before the body was found. Every known way of resuscitation for drowning was resorted to for over an hour. At length a physician pronounced further efforts useless.

On Thursday morning the members of the Alpha Chi Sigma fraternity of the academy, of which Earl was a member, held services over his body. Later impressive services were held by the school authorities. The body was taken to the parade ground and a volley was fired over the dead school mate in presence of entire school body. "Taps" was then sounded and the body was conveyed to the train, accompanied by the school in dress suits and arms reversed. The body arrived in this place on Friday morning and was taken to the home of his aunt, Mrs. Deatrick, on Chambersburg street. The funeral was held here on Saturday morning, the services being in charge of Rev. Dr. J. A. Clutz, assisted by Rev. E. H. True, Rev. C. E. Snook and the Principal of the Peekskill Academy, and interment being made in the Evergreen cemetery. The friends of Earl at the academy sent with the body a wealth of floral tributes, to which his many friends here added, all speaking of the regard and esteem which he enjoyed.

Jacob Raucher, a veteran of the Civil War, met sudden death in the stable of Globe Hotel on Memorial Day. He was in apparent good health about noon of that day, as he was given a meal ticket by one of the committee having charge of arrangements of that day. In the evening he entered the stable and went up to the hay mow. The hostler, Brown, says at about 11 o'clock that night Raucher asked him to get him some water which he got for him. The hostler did not go up in mow until late on Thursday afternoon and then hurried to the hotel explaining that there seemed to be something wrong with a man in the mow. Several parties went with him to the mow and found Raucher lying on the hay dead and apparently without a struggle. The stable was at once closed and District Attorney Keith and Coroner Hartman notified. Upon arrival of these officials, an examination of the body was made by Dr. Hartman. No marks of violence was found on body and Dr. Hartman gave it as his opinion that death was due to heart failure. Jacob Raucher had been living in county for some years. His home was in New York State and it is said he was a prosperous miller there at one time. He was a member of Co. F, of the 44th New York Regiment. He was in the battle of Gettysburg at Little Round Top on evening of July 2 and was wounded there. His name is engraved on one of the bronze tablets in the handsome monument of his regiment on Little Round Top. The body of the veteran was taken charge of by the Post here and H. R. Bender took it to the Post room. Friday evening he was buried in the National Cemetery, services being in charge of the Post and a squad of Sons of Veterans Reserves firing a volley over the grave. While in county Jacob Raucher had worked several years for Martin Hoyer at his rake factory near Haglerville, he had been employed by Mr. Ingersoll at Player's Lodge and had been hostler at Hotel Biglerville, leaving that place about a week before his death and coming to town.

Harvey Gibson, a colored man employed at Bittinger's lime kilns and living close by was killed by a Western Maryland freight train on last Wednesday afternoon. Gibson had quit work on Memorial Day at noon and had gone to Hanover where it is said he became intoxicated. On his way home he laid down on the track near the Bittinger siding, fell asleep and the freight train came along and literally ground him to pieces. His remains were gathered together by section hands and removed to his home near Bittinger's station. An inquest was deemed unnecessary. Gibson was aged about 30 years and is survived by his wife. The remains were buried on Thursday afternoon in the old Lutheran graveyard along Carlisle pike, near Hanover, Rev. David Baker officiating.

Mrs. Anna C. Smith Heiges, wife of Dr. J. D. Heiges of York died suddenly on last Thursday evening. Apparently she was in the best of health and at time of retiring was overwhelmed with a shortness of breath and motioned to her husband to come and fan her. He quickly reached her side and in a moment she expired. She was 56 years of age and besides her husband leaves six sons and one daughter. She was the daughter of the late William Smith of York and is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary E. Smith, one brother Horace Smith of York and three sisters, Mrs. H. L. Baugher of this place, Mrs. W. H. McClellan and Miss Cassandra Smith of York.

Her husband died 20 years ago and she is survived by one child Mrs. Hostetter. The funeral took place on last Saturday, interment in the Bucher graveyard on the farm.

Emanuel Stoner, of Westminster who had been suffering for several years with some mental alienation caused by a severe illness took his own life on last Wednesday morning. He and his wife had been living alone until a few days prior thereto when one of his sons came home. Fifteen years ago the deceased established the well known Stoner nurseries in Westminster, which are still carried on by J. E. Stoner one of his sons, formerly of this place. He leaves a widow, seven sons and four daughters, two living in Iowa, three in Missouri, one in Colorado, one in Frederick county, three in Westminster and C. A. Stoner of this place.

Mrs. Philip Koontz, died on May 25, at her home in York Springs from dropsy, aged 68 years, 9 months. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon following, services by Rev. Stanley Billheimer, assisted by Rev. J. M. Gardner with interment at Sunnyside cemetery. She leaves besides her husband, one son John Koontz and one daughter Mrs. J. Wm. Fickel, all of York Springs.

Mrs. Henry Heiner, died at her home in Hampton on Tuesday of last week May 29, after a lingering illness aged about 65 years. She is survived by her husband, one son of Washington D. C. and one daughter Mrs. John McClellan of York Springs.

Miss Mary Rose Ginter, daughter of Wm. Ginter of Berwick township died at her home on May 25, after a lingering illness aged 18 years, 8 mos. and 7 days. Funeral on Monday of last week, interment in Catholic Cemetery of New Oxford. She is survived by her father and two brothers, Felix of Philadelphia and Benjamin of St. Louis.

Mrs. Margaret Myers, widow of the late Ezra Myers died at the home of her son Clayton H. Myers in New Oxford on last Friday, aged about 80 years. She had been ill but was thought to be convalescing. Mrs. Leib's maiden name was Miss Mary Ann Kimmel and was born near East Berlin June 18, 1836. Upon her marriage to Emanuel Leib they removed to Rushville. She leaves two sons. She was a sister of Geo. Kimmel of East Berlin.

Mrs. Edward Blocher died at her home in Bendersville on last Wednesday evening. She was convalescing from a recent illness when she took a turn for the worse. Her age was 68 years, 11 months and 12 days. Funeral was held on Saturday morning with interment in Bendersville cemetery. She had lived her whole life in that place.

Mrs. Margaret C. Myers, widow of Anthony K. Myers, a former resident of York Springs died in Columbus, Ohio, on Monday morning, aged 80 years. She was a daughter of the late Col. John Wolford of York Springs. She leaves to survive her a number of children among them, Wm. H. A. Myers of York Springs, Mrs. John Mauck of Columbus, Mrs. Pesha of Ohio and several sons in the west.

School Board Organizes.

The Cumberland township school board organized on Monday at Hotel Gettysburg. Jacob E. Sharetts being elected President, D. J. Forner, Secretary and J. H. McCullough, treasurer. The rate of tax for 1906 was fixed at 4 mills. The loss of land taken by the Government, quarantine expenses and other items have necessitated increase in rate.

KILLED WITH PUMP HANDLE

SKULL CRUSHED AND DEATH ENSUES A DAY LATER.

Eyler Escapes to Maryland, is Caught and Brought Back to Jail on Monday.

If the killing of Howard A. Miller on Decoration Day 1906 shall be legally adjudicated a murder, as the Coroner's jury has found, it will be the first murder to be so determined occurring in the borough of Gettysburg. Think of that record, a borough for over a hundred years, and for the last forty three years a point to which thousands of tourists have come, tens of thousands of excursionists, and all conditions of crowds, yet in that time no death has taken place which has been legally adjudicated as a murder.

There have been murder trials in the Courts and there have been five executions in jail for murders committed, but in not a single instance was the crime done in the borough of Gettysburg.

This unique record may be broken by the awful crime committed on Memorial Day 1906, when Howard Allen Miller of Mountjoy township received wounds made by William Eyler, living in Liberty township, from which the former died about 24 hours later.

First Altercation.

It seems that there had been bad blood for some time between Howard Miller and one William Long, a brother-in-law of William Eyler, occasioned it is said by a horse trade. Long and Miller met on the afternoon of the day in the Globe Hotel and had an altercation.

One who saw it says it began in the hall way to the rear of the bar room. That a small man began to strike at Miller and that the latter paid little attention to his assailant. That a larger man joined in the attack, pushing Miller into a corner and striking at him until he took a hand and turned on his assailants, and pushing them aside he made his way into bar room.

The man who is said to be Long followed him into the bar room and renewed the altercation and blows were exchanged. No one attempted to interfere. Some one remarked they were only using their fists and would not hurt one another. At length the two men stopped their wrangle and Miller walked into office and stood near the radiator. His nose was bleeding from a blow received.

Eyler Appears.

After this altercation had ended seems to be the time William Eyler put in his appearance. William Irwin of this place says he first saw him in the passage way back of the bar room. Eyler was wrenching at the pump and finally made a pull at the handle and latter snapped near where it is bolted to stock. He says when the handle broke Eyler fell backward with a jerk several feet, almost falling. Mr. Irwin says he did not stagger and that he saw nothing about him to show he was under the influence of liquor.

With the pump handle in his hand, a piece of iron about two feet long and weighing six or seven pounds Mr. Irwin heard him say

"I'll fight for my brother-in-law. Show me the man."

Edward McLeary, the bartender, hearing the noise of the breaking of the pump handle, came out of bar room to passage and exclaimed,

"What did you break that for, you will have to pay for that."

"Eyler responded, 'I'll pay for it. I've got the money in my pocket.'"

Eyler moved into and through the bar room and into the office and came upon Miller. There are those who say another party was with him and it is rumored that the remark was overheard,

The Fatal Blows.

Without warning or putting Miller on his guard Eyler rushed at Miller and raising the pump handle brought it down on Miller's head. Miller was not facing Eyler, but was standing sideways to him and as far as known was unaware of the attack.

Two or three blows were struck by Eyler. One witness says he saw the first blow which felled him to the floor and that he was lying on floor face downwards, with head however to the side, exposing the left side of head. The same witness says the last blow was made with pump handle in both hands and blow was behind left ear on Miller while lying on floor.

This blow, while it did not break the flesh, crushed in the skull at that most vital spot at base of the brain. The wounded man bled from the ears, nose and mouth. Mr. Miller was carried to the back parlor in an unconscious condition. Later in day he was placed on a cot in the same room but he never regained consciousness. At first he seemed rigid. Several hours later there were movements in his limbs. He seemed to have a wonderful vitality. At times the pulse seemed to cease, then it would regain its normal strength. Life flickered in this way until death came on Thursday evening at about 7 o'clock.

Flight of Eyler.

After Eyler struck the last blow he turned and ran back into bar room. There he dropped pump handle. The crowd there seemed paralyzed and no one made any attempt to stop him. Proprietor Barkdoll says he followed him at once to rear door but he had disappeared in crowd.

The crime occurred at about four o'clock and as a witness said, the parties had not been in hotel ten minutes before it occurred. Eyler lost his hat in the office and hatless he made his way on foot through the town, up Baltimore street, out Steinwehr avenue and Emmitsburg road to the Sherry place. There he turned westward, and rather on took to the creek.

Officer C. H. Wilson started in pursuit of the criminal on foot in an automobile but was compelled to abandon the pursuit. Returning to town he telegraphed to Emmitsburg to apprehend Eyler. About seven o'clock Wednesday evening word was received that Eyler had been caught and was a prisoner in Emmitsburg. Charles Wilson and Charles Sefton drove to Emmitsburg the same evening for the prisoner. When they arrived in that town they found great excitement prevailing.

Arrested Near Emmitsburg.

Doubtless Ashbaugh had gone to the top of the hill this side of Emmitsburg and there discovered a hatless man making his way across a field to road. When he took him into his custody the man at first showed some evidence of being an unwilling prisoner but finally went with the constable to his home in Emmitsburg. When Wilson arrived he was asked for a description of man wanted and stated that Eyler was thin and that his right hand was deformed in some way, due it is said to bite of a copper head snake. When Ashbaugh was satisfied with the identification he advised that Wilson had better proceed in regular way, swear out a warrant. Eyler had at no time objected to coming back. However when warrant had been sworn out and Eyler was taken before Justice Stokes, a report became circulated that a big crowd was gathering along Emmitsburg road near this place and as soon as Wilson would return with his prisoner the latter would be taken from him and lynched. Wilson assured them he would land his prisoner in jail and that the reports of a lynching party were false. The situation ended in Eyler being taken to Frederick jail on Thursday morning and Wilson coming home to obtain requisition papers for him.

Requisition.

John Miller, the father of Howard A. Miller, made information before Justice Hill and Chas. H. Wilson started on Thursday afternoon to Harrisburg for Governor Pennypacker's signature. Then he went to Annapolis and secured signature of Governor Warfield. Finding he did not have time to go to Frederick and reach home by Saturday evening he came directly here on Saturday evening.

Wounds Fatal.

As soon as Miller had been carried to the back parlor Dr. H. M. Hartman was sent for. Several visiting physicians were in hotel at time and with Dr. Hartman made a careful examination of the injured man and concluded he was beyond help. The question of whether he could be helped by being sent to a city hospital was answered in a phone message of Dr. Hartman to Johns Hopkins Hospital, in which it was stated that it was useless to send injured man to hospital, that his injury was fatal and any operation would be fatal.

Funeral.

Mr. Barkdoll, proprietor of Globe, immediately sent for the family of the injured man. His wife, who was a Miss Shorb, four children and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, of Mountjoy township were with him when the end came. Mr. Barkdoll had closed his hotel early on Memorial Day and had roped the alley shut on west side of hotel so as to give the wounded man quietness. As soon as death occurred the hotel was again closed up. After the inquest Thursday evening H. R. Bender took body to Mr. Miller's home near Two Taverns. Funeral was held on Saturday morning, the services being conducted by Rev. F. S. Lindaman and interment at St. James Church near Littlestown, the funeral being attended by a very large number of friends, relatives and acquaintances.

Mr. Miller was 31 years old, his father, John Miller, and his grandfather, Joseph Miller, both of Mountjoy township surviving. Mr. Miller had bought a small farm about a year ago where he, his wife and family of four small children lived.

The Inquest.

Dr. H. M. Hartman, coroner of Adams county on Thursday evening immediately following the death of Howard A. Miller, held an inquest. The jury summoned were Brady M. Sefton, Dr. E. H. Markley, Jos. W. Sefton, J. Watt, Dickson, Emory J. Plank and Chas. C. Sefton. They viewed the body of dead man, took note of the wound causing death, heard the testimony of Wm. Stout, Wm. Barkdoll and Wm. Irwin. Friday morning the jury signed their report finding.

That Howard Miller came to his death by means of a wound inflicted at the base of the brain and the said wound was caused by the premeditated, felonious, wilful and malicious act of Wm. Eyler, who feloniously, wilfully and of malice aforethought did kill and murder and slay the said Howard Miller by striking him with an iron pump handle in Globe Hotel on Wed. May 30, 1906.

The Prisoner.

William Eyler is said to be twenty two or twenty three years of age. He is of medium size and usually a quiet man but when drinking is rough.

Officer Wilson went to Frederick on Monday, secured Eyler and telegraphed Sheriff Colestock, who sent team to meet them at Littlestown. The party drove to this place, reaching here about 6 o'clock and outwitted the crowd waiting at depot. The prisoner has been very quiet, doing little talking. It is said he can neither read or write.

Arrests Last Week.

Howard Allen a young man of Leesburg, Cumberland Co. came to Gettysburg on Memorial Day and had his first glass of liquor. He met Wm. Codori Jr. shortly afterwards and struck him in the face. He was arrested for assault and battery and taken before Justice Hill who committed him to jail. Next day he was released with consent of Mr. Codori, after expressing his regret, paying the costs, doctors bill and giving a bond to be liable for any medical attention that might be required within a year on account of the blow given.

Clarence Lippencott of New Oxford was arrested on information of his wife Mrs. Vertie Lippencott, charging assault and battery. The man went to New Oxford from New Jersey and worked in Emmitsburg shoe factory during the past year. He married Miss Vertie Deatrick several months ago. The defendant on hearing before Justice Straley plead guilty and was committed to jail. The wife later visited him in jail and the difficulties were settled, she withdrawing her prosecution and defendant being released from jail.

Harry Hoffman, the young butcher living at Hoffman was held for court last week by Alderman Stager of York to answer the charge of running a gambling house and furnishing liquor to minors.

Harry Fleming, a stone mason was arrested near New Chester by a York County detective and taken to York to answer charge of skipping a board bill three years ago.

Base Ball With Indians.

There will be a great game of Base Ball on Saturday on Nixon Field between the college team and the Carlisle Indians. The Indians always put up a good game and as the last one of the season no lover of the national game should miss it. Game called at 1:30 sharp.

The college team simply wiped the Lebanon Valley College team off the earth in two games on Decoration Day. They won the morning game by score of 19 to 2, and the afternoon game was stopped in 4th inning to let the visitors make their train with score standing 12 to 0.

On last Friday with McDonald pitching and in a game in which the college team made a number of errors they lost to the Indians by the score of 7 to 5.

On Saturday Dickinson was defeated in a fast game, Kauffman pitching, to the tune of 4 to 2.

Gitt for Congress.

Last week brought out the political announcement of the candidacy of Harry N. Gitt for Congress, declaring however that it is subject to the agreement entered into between the Congressional conference of Adams and York counties in 1904 in which Hon. Wm. McSherry is conceded a renomination if desired by that gentleman. In an interview he added that as Mr. McSherry had not as yet made any announcement and the York County Democratic Convention meet to nominate on June 5, he presumed that Mr. McSherry did not intend to be a candidate.

A GREAT MEMORIAL DAY

WITH A PARADE SURPASSING ANY EVER HAD ON THAT DAY.

With a Fine Oration by Col. Alex. McClure—Three Bands in Parade.

Memorial Day 1906 at Gettysburg will be remembered as one brilliantly bright, a few clouds during mid-day obscuring the bright sunshine for a short while.

The crowd seemed to many greater, at least as great, as two years ago when President Roosevelt was here. Adams county emptied itself into the county-seat by every road. The Western Maryland brought nine excursion trains from Washington, Baltimore, York and all along the line, from Hagerstown, Cumberland and points in West Virginia. Cars were crowded. Between 5,000 and 6,000 people were brought by this road.

The Reading brought extra trains from Shippensburg, Carlisle, Harrisburg and other points. Altogether it would be a safe estimate to say there was about 20,000 people in town.

The hotels, restaurants and eating houses were crowded and did a land office business from mid-day until trains departed.

The Parade.

The parade was unquestionably the best that Gettysburg has ever gotten up unaided by national or state militia. The committee in charge deserve great credit for making the parade as attractive as possible. The parade was in charge of Lieut. I. S. Stonesifer, Chief Marshal, and Assistant Marshalls Major Henry Stewart and Dr. E. H. Markley.

At 1:30 the parade moved from Public Square, Policemen Kappes and Noel leading and clearing the way, followed by Chief Marshal Stonesifer and Assistant Markley.

The Arendtsville Mountain Valley Band had the post of honor leading the parade and covered themselves all over with credit for the excellence of music and organization.

The Sons of Veterans Reserves were next in line with Assistant Marshal Stewart, followed by carriage occupied by Col. A. K. McClure, Col. Bonafin and Dr. H. W. McKnight.

The floral float built by Florist Cremer came next. It was made of banks of white flowers, topped with red peonies.

The band of Pleasant Hill in green uniform preceded the Eichelberger Academy Cadets and other organizations.

The Citizens Band of Hanover preceded Corporal Skelly Post 9 G. A. R. and ex-soldiers, and Old Glory was born aloft by Perry Tawney, who for 15 consecutive years has rendered this service.

Baltimore street was simply packed from the Square to the Cemetery with moving and standing people watching the parade.

Strewing the Flowers.

At the National Cemetery the beautiful ceremony of strewing the flowers on the graves of the heroic dead followed, the school children strewing over the marked graves while the veterans remembered the unknown. The Citizens Band of Hanover played during these services.

At Rostrom.

Dr. H. W. McKnight was Master of Ceremonies at the Rostrom. After music by band and prayer by Rev. Dr. T. C. Billheimer, the orator of the day, Col. A. K. McClure was introduced. This gifted Pennsylvanian, silver of hair, arising, was received with a burst of applause and spoke these winged words.

gle nearly half a century ago, when he was called to represent the Gettysburg district in the State Senate, and to the pride he had cherished for the honor of having represented the Gettysburg district in the highest Legislative tribunal of the state, when the great issues of civil war had to be met in field and forum. He portrayed the great battle on whose field they had met to deck the graves of the fallen heroes in the decisive battle of the fraternal conflict, with the beauty and fragrance of flowers.

He spoke of the pride that every Pennsylvanian must feel, not only in having this great battlefield within the limits of our commonwealth, but in the distinction won in that bloody struggle by Pennsylvania soldiers. Meade, of Pennsylvania, commanded the army; Reynolds, of Pennsylvania, opened the attack and fell upon the field; Hancock, of Pennsylvania, lay prostrate from terrible wounds, hard by the bloody angle, and remained on the field until he could announce the repulse of Pickett's charge, and Gregg, of Pennsylvania, met the assault of Stuart's five thousand troopers, and repulsed them in the desperate effort to turn the right flank of the Union army.

The concluding portion of the address presented in very earnest and incisive terms, the danger of the present socialistic tendencies and the necessity of maintaining the liberty of law for which our Revolutionary fathers fought, and for which the dead around us here today gave their lives to maintain. He said:

Ours is a government of law; its foundation stone is the liberty of law. We speak of the ancient Republics of Rome and Greece, but the Republic of the United States is the only great government in the world's history that was founded and maintained on the liberty of law. The ancient so-called Republics taught the liberty of license; they would defy today and crucify tomorrow, and they perished because they had no basis of public safety.

The nation generously accords to the soldiers who made such countless sacrifice for the preservation of the Union, full credit for the heroism they exhibited in the flame of battle, but it has not justly appreciated the equally lustrous record our soldiers have made of heroism in peace. They fought for the majesty of the Union, of liberty, of law, of order and of public and private safety, and in all the various local efforts in different sections of the country to overthrow the supremacy of law and order, the Union soldier has ever been in the forefront to maintain the liberty of law for which he offered his life.

I recall the terrible cloud of anarchy that spread its dark pall over the land in 1877, when the power of local and even state governments was overthrown by the red-handed rioter. In Philadelphia, mobs took possession of our railway depots, and the state and city governments were powerless to move a single train. Our great highways, from the Eastern Sea to the Father of Waters, were in the hands of inflamed mobs. The transmission of mails, of commerce and of travel was absolutely halted. I was called to serve as one of the Committee of Safety of five to act in confidential accord with the mayor of the city to aid him in maintaining the public peace and reopening our railroads.

Revolutionary necessities had been precipitated by revolutionary action, and without waiting for formal warrant, the Committee advised the Mayor to double the police force and have the veteran military forces of the city notified to be in readiness for action. The first important duty was to appoint one thousand additional policemen. There were then many thousand Philadelphia working men out of employment, many of whom owned their own homes, and it was believed that from that class a large number of emergency policemen would be obtained. In that we were sadly disappointed. There were thousands of honest and home-owning working men in Philadelphia, who, while opposed to anarchy, as a rule, would not serve as policemen to enforce law and order against those who falsely claimed to be battling for the benefit of labor.

We next turned to the Grand Army and a thousand of as true men as ever accepted public duty, reinforced the police within a very few hours. There was not a single soldier of the civil war who did not promptly and heroically respond to the call for the forcible maintenance of the liberty of law, and they gave peace to Philadelphia. Soon thereafter, less than a company of veterans marched upon the thousands of cowardly rioters at the railroad depots, and the lawless fled before the gleam of the bayonet that demanded the mastery of law and order. I speak advisedly as one who was in the inner councils of those who were charged with the responsible duty of restoring Philadelphia to peace, when I say that our great city was saved from anarchy and murder by the fidelity of our Union soldiers, who were as heroic in peace as they were in war.

He who closes his eyes to the present growth of socialistic theories, even in our great law-abiding state of Pennsylvania, is either wilfully blind or does not consider the perils which confront him, not only in his every day vocation, but in the safety of his government, of his home and its household gods, and of the priceless patrimony of the liberty of law that he has inherited from the men who suffered at Valley Forge and fought at Germantown and Brandywine, and of the later heroic men who fought on this memorable battlefield.

Patriotism is the birthright, the inherent attribute, of American citizenship, but indolence, misfortune, prejudice, ignorance and passion at times lead men, and often insensibility, into the vortex of socialism, and socialism is simply the evening twilight of perishing patriotism that opens the highway to the starless midnight of anarchy. It is not American in conception, but it comes from the seething fountain of anarchy that has thrown up scores of thousands into some of our industrial channels, who have no conception of liberty but that of license to overthrow the majesty of law and to make riot and murder the teachers of liberty.

Our courts have been misled into according citizenship to those who are strangers to every attribute of free government, and we now hear the public and defiant demand that the constabulary, that has already proved its efficiency by a single platoon or company charged with the maintenance of peace and order, making thousands hault in their madness, shall be abolished, and that the Courts shall be made powerless to restrain the liberty of license that is now so ostentatiously proclaimed in some of our great industrial centres. Every citizen should understand that when the demand comes for the retirement of our constabulary and for limitations upon the powers of the courts to maintain public order and private safety, under whatever party name or other disguise they come, it is simply the insolent demand of anarchy that the liberty of law shall be overthrown. The courts are the bulwark of safety to person and property, and the highest tribute that could be paid to their fidelity is in the assaults of the lawless.

The veterans of our civil war, who saved Philadelphia and other sections of the state from anarchy thirty years ago, have been faithful in peace as they were heroic in war to preserve the majesty of government and the peace of the community. Few of them remain among the living and their heads are silvered, their forms bowed, their eyes dimmed and the shadows of the City of the Silent are reflected in the furrows which line their faces, but their children have grown up under the patriotic teaching and the heroic example of their fathers and their children's children must ever be faithful to the sublime government for which their fathers fought and died; and to the few grizzled veterans who linger with us here to-day, and to their children, and to all others who are here to honor the dead who gave their lives for the maintenance of free and peaceful rule, I earnestly appeal to here take high resolve that the liberty of law, that came "of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Rev. W. W. Hartman closed services with benediction.

Character Shows In Work.

A foolish person builds foolishly, and a wise one sensibly, a virtuous one beautifully and a vicious one badly. If stonework is well put together it means that a thoughtful man cut it and an honest man cemented it. If it has too much ornament it means that its carver was too greedy of pleasure, if too little that he was rude or insensitive or stupid or the like. A man may hide himself from you or misrepresent himself to you every other way, but he cannot in his work. There he sure you have him to the utmost, all that he likes, all that he sees, all that he can do—his imagination, his affection, his perseverance, his impatience, clumsiness, cleverness, everything is there. If the work is a cobweb you know it was made by a spider. If a homely comb by a bee, a workman is thrown up by a worm and a nest wreathed by a bird, and a house built by a man worthily if he is worthy and ignobly if he is ignoble. And always, from the least to the greatest, as a thing made is good or bad so is the maker of it.

Animals' Play Is Exercise.

The relaxed rhythmical movements so common among animals at play, the gamboling of lambs, the play of kittens and many similar animal activities, are imitated by man in the primitive dances which form so large a part in the social and religious life of all aboriginal peoples. These motions of leaping, swaying, swaying and twisting of the body have, all of them, a most intimate and powerful influence upon the body's activities, organic and muscular. Rolling is a form of exercise which is a favorite with many animals and is especially practiced for the purpose of relieving fatigue. Rolling is peculiarly enjoyable and grateful to the animal because it provides not only relief for the tensed muscles, the depleted organs and the slow moving circulation, but because as the animal rolls the firm pressure of the ground upon his body constitutes a most effective and agreeable massage.

Happiness After Night.

There is one kind of vehicle that neither the oldest nor the youngest inhabitant has seen on the street at night, or, if he has seen it at all, only infrequently. That is a hearse. Every other kind of conveyance used by modern man is driven about the streets freely after nightfall: the hearse alone comes under the curfew law. Early hours seem to be imposed upon that sinister carriage by common consent. The public doesn't like to see it after dark, and conductors don't like to drive it. No doubt there are hearsees that are compelled by the exigencies of funeral arrangements to come home at unreasonable hours, but when forced to an infringement of the curfew law they proceed through quiet streets where they will be least likely to wound the sensibilities of the superstitious.—New York Herald.

Happy the man who early knows the wide chasm that lies between his wishes and his powers.—Goethe.

TORTURING PAIN.

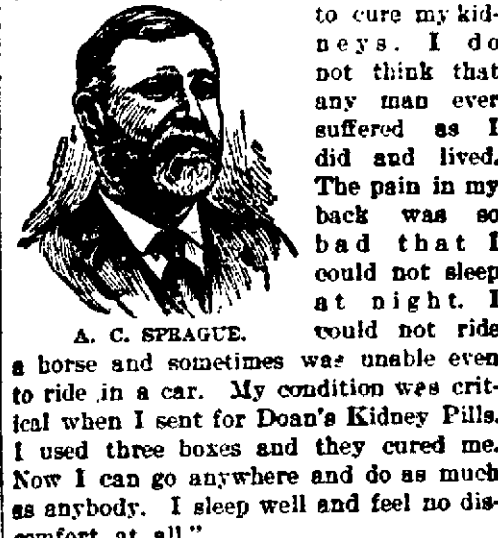

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

TORTURED BY ITCHING ECZEMA

Suffered Tremendous Itching Over Whole Body—Scratched Until Bled—Worse at Night, With Soreness and Excruciating Pains—A Western Lady's

WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Last year at this time I suffered with a tremendous itching on my back, which grew worse and worse, until it spread over the whole body, and only my face and hands were free. For four months or so I suffered the tortures of the damned, and I had to scratch, scratch, scratch, until I bled. At night when I went to bed things got worse, and I had at times to get up and scratch my body all over, until I was as sore as could be, and until I suffered excruciating pain. I did not know what it was, and resorted to a number of blood purifiers, using at times also Cuticura Soap. They told me then that I was suffering from eczema. Then I made up my mind that I would also use Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. I used them according to instructions, and very soon indeed I was greatly relieved. I continued until well, and now I am ready to recommend the Cuticura Remedies to any one who suffers as did our obedient servant, Mrs. Mary Metzger, Sweetwater, Okla., June 28, 1905."

TORTURING, DISFIGURING Humors, Eczemas, and Itchings Cured by Cuticura

The Deserter

(Copyright, 1905, by Homer Sprague.) It was while General Lee was making his preparations for the invasion of Pennsylvania. In charge of a picket post numbering seven or eight men was Sergeant Joe Wise, who was called the best trained man in Company G and who had proved his bravery on three or four battlefields. The sergeant was thirty-five years old and unmarried, but back at home in Michigan a red checked farmer's daughter had said that she would be his wife when he came marching home from the war.

On this night, as the sergeant sat by the fire with his men out on post, one of the company came along and handed him a letter received at regimental headquarters two hours previously. It was opened to read at the flickering flames of the fire. It was from a stay at home man, one of those pestilential minded gossip who delighted in telling all he knew and much more of affairs back home. According to his gossip many things had occurred in the little village in the last month and one of them was the desertion of Joe's sweetheart to a henchman who had furnished a substitute for the war. He put it strong to the sergeant that he had been made a fool of.

Hart an hour later Joe was missed. An hour later word went back to the company that he must have been surprised and captured by Confederate scouts.

The deserter thanked his command and rushed on to Washington. There he obtained a suit of civilian's clothes, and as a private citizen he set his face toward his home.

Ten miles away he left the train for the woods, and, after hours of gliding and skulking, he finally drew near the home of his betrothed. Father, mother and daughter were sitting on the veranda and with them the sneak who had written the letter. Concealed behind the lilac bushes growing close to the veranda, the sergeant heard every word of the conversation for an hour. The writer of the letter had lied to him. His feelings had been aroused to the pitch where he had sacrificed his honor and his good name without just reason.

Through the man who sat there boasting of what he had written a soldier with a clean record had become a sneak and a skunk. Should he reveal himself then and there he would be loaded with anathemas and reproaches. No father with patriotism in his heart would have him for a son-in-law. No girl who thought of honor and reputation would welcome him.

The deserter groined in agony as he realized the situation, and the people had withdrawn into the house to go to bed before he crawled away. That night he walked fifteen miles, dodging and skulking and afraid of everything that moved by the roadside. In the morning he was headed for Pennsylvania. The papers told him which way Lee was moving. He found confusion in Philadelphia. There was no provost guard to pick him up and ask questions; no citizen to suspect him of being a deserter. He found a place where he could exchange his suit for a uniform and was off for the front on-hour later.

The country was overrun by parties from either side, and it was the sergeant's fortune to be gobbled up by Confederate cavalry. He was sent to the rear as a prisoner. He was held until the thunder of the three days' battle was hushed and Lee was falling slowly back on Bulling Waters, and then he and hundreds more were headed for the Potomac. The rest is to be found in the history of his company and regiment. That history reads:

"As Lee fell back, his retreat hurried with wounded men, prisoners and a long baggage train. Custer pressed one division of it closely over the mountain roads. There were constant attacks and the Confederates fought

THE DANGER TO THE CHILD

Mar to read or the snake may be a harm. Every child's life is in the mother's hands in womanly health and functional vitality.

Thousands of women have borne their sufferings and kept their families to themselves from motives of delicacy and false childhood has paid for it.

Dr. Pierce, forty years ago, conceived Nature, and found that she had provided remedies in abundance for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments and weaknesses. He found that non-alkaloidal glyceric extracts of Golden Seal root, Blue Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Black Cohosh root and Lady's Slipper root, combined in just the right proportions, gave such surprising results that this compound soon became a standard remedy of his in the treatment of such cases. In a little time the demand for it became so great that he determined to put it up and provide for its general sale so that the multitudes needing it could readily supply themselves.

This is now known all over the civilized world as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Remedy, and its unparalleled record of hundreds of thousands of cures, in the last forty years, justifies all that can be said of it.

bravely to save what they had won. At a point about ten miles from the river, where we made an unusually fierce attack and where the resistance was proving too much for us, a sudden diversion gave us the victory. A Federal sergeant belonging to a Michigan regiment and who was a prisoner in Confederate hands rallied about 400 of his fellow captives, rushed their guns and, with arms thus obtained, made a flank movement and scattered the force opposed to us and came charging through to us. The sergeant brought in the flag of a Confederate regiment that he had captured, and there is no doubt of his promotion for his brave conduct."

A month later Sergeant Wise was Lieutenant Wise. The order read on dress parade spoke to the regiment of his being captured while on duty at a picket post, of escape and recapture, and recorded his act of capturing the flag and turning on his captors as one of the bravest things in war. The sergeant had not lied or boasted. He had left others to figure out as they wanted to, and they had made the most of it. A year and a half later he was a captain and on his way home to marry the girl who was waiting for him.

He did not march to her house, nor yet to his, from the depot. He took a contrary direction until he brought up before the house of the man who had held his honor in his hands. Then things happened. A year later the justice of the peace would have called it felonious assault, and jail might have been the consequence, but Lee had surrendered, the war was over, and the home coming veterans owned the country. The wife has never known.

No human being except the sergeant's chum has ever known. It was a race between honor and disgrace, and honor won.

"The Queen of Sicily."

Syracuse calls itself the capital of the south, but it has no cause to dispute pride of place with Palermo. The metropolitan city is superior in population, wealth and much else, but it is deficient in what its ancient and glorious rival has in such abundance. For Syracuse has the supreme claim of Greece in a way that no other city except Athens has. Not even in Corinth, nowhere in Hellas from Messina or Sparta in the south to Thebes in the north, is there any Hellenic town to compare with "the queen of Sicily." As a sanctuary, Delphi is far more impressive than anything in Sicily, as a national meeting place Olympia has no rival, but nowhere except at Athens is a Greek city to be seen today which has the proud record of the marvelous metropolis of the Sicilian Greeks, a city as great in power and wealth and beauty as Athens herself, and victor at last in the long and fatal rivalry which indirectly involved the passing of the Hellenic dominion of all the lands washed by the Ionian and Mediterranean seas.—Century.

Enthusiastic Welcoming "Made in Japan."

Unless these are ladies among the guests the "little and daughters" of the host do not appear at dinner in Japan. Before the meal begins it is customary for them to bring small cups of tea and Calumet confectionery, when they take their survey of the party. If gentlemen only are present the Japanese business disappears after the greeting is over and does not return until the guests are taking their departure. At a dinner from the host barefooted waiting maids, dressed in graceful and prettily tinted kimonos, bring in lacquer trays, bearing tiny covered bowls. Before setting the trays on the table the maids stoop gracefully to their knees and bend forward till their foreheads touch the floor. Then they serve dinner, which is of several courses.—Smith's Weekly.

A Lively Paper Cutter.

Here is a little story which the English papers tell and any one is at liberty to believe if he will. No affidavits go with it. When Lord Dufferin was viceroy of India the maharajah of Indor paid him a visit and asked as a memento an ivory paper cutter belonging to Lord Dufferin. He consented, the Indian left, and the viceroy never saw him until some months later when the maharajah introduced a fine young elephant into the room. A pile of newspapers lay at Lord Dufferin's side. The animal went up to them, cut them gently with its tusks, which had been purposely sharpened, and laid them in a neat heap on the floor, ready for perusal.

Great Britain's Rainfall.

Rainfall is a condition which has much to do with our health. A wet district with a good deal of subsoil water, making houses damp, is a locality in which rheumatism and consumption are likely to prevail. Over England and Wales the average yearly rainfall is about thirty-four inches, in Scotland it reaches forty-six inches and in Ireland about thirty-eight inches. Possibly the wettest parts of Britain are in Cumberland, where the rainfall may attain 150 inches per year. One inch of rain on one acre of ground means a hundred tons of water.—London Graphic.

NATIONAL MONUMENTS.

Count not the cost of honor to the dead! The tribute that a mighty nation pays To those who loved her well in former days Means more than gratitude for glories fled; For every noble man that she hath bred, Immortalized by art's immortal praise, Lives in the bronze and marble that we raise.

To our sons as be our fathers led, These monuments of manhood, brave and high, Do more than forts or battle-ships to keep Our dear-bought liberty, they fortify The heart of youth with valor wise and deep; They build eternal bulwarks, and command Eternal strength to guard our native land. —Henry Van Dyke in the June Century.

The Curse of Child Slavery.

If the curse of child labor were but weariness, and the sacrifice of the joy of childhood, the case would be bad enough. But there is cruelty as well. I will not speak from hearsay, but tell what I know.

In the North as well as in the South men are employed for the express purpose of wakening children who fall asleep by throwing cold water over them, or by prodding them with sticks. I have seen little boys and girls cower with unspeakable fear beneath the torrents of foul oaths hurled at them by brutal foremen. We shall see enough instances of this cruelty before we are through with this fight. But even worse than the voluntary cruelty of the taskmaster is the inexorable cruelty of the disease-breeding, life-destroying existence these children must lead.

No one knows the full strength of the army of child slaves—surely two million or three million little ones, probably many thousands more uncounted.

Alarming as these figures are, they are less alarming than the fact that the evil of child slavery is increasing. The latest report of the Pennsylvania State Department of Labor reports a great increase in the number of children employed in that state, which bears the unenviable distinction of employing more children than any other. From "To Save the Children" in Woman's Home Companion for June.

Stamping out Yellow Fever.

It is hard to believe that a species of small mosquito has claimed more victims than war. Mr. Samuel Hopkins Adams, in the June McClure's, has an enlightening story of the manner in which New Orleans fought this pest last summer, stamping out the yellow fever two months before frost. All sections of the country are vitally interested in the yellow fever problem for it does not confine itself to the South. If we look back we find some of the most disastrous epidemics have occurred in northern cities. The records show how, in the latter part of the eighteenth century, yellow fever ravaged Philadelphia killing half the population. One of the worst epidemics in our history occurred in New Haven, Connecticut, and this terrible disease whose working has, until recently, been a mystery, got as far north as Toronto, Canada, where it did terrific execution until the early frost stamped it out. In "Yellow Fever: A Problem Solved," Mr. Adams tells of the discovery of the mosquito theory and how New Orleans took chances and worked along its lines proving it beyond doubt. The best part of this story is that while it contains all the scientific details it is much more than a scientific treatise. Mr. Adams makes his points through the medium of little human interest stories. After reading it one knows all about the steegomyia and how his attacks may be met. Mr. Adams prophesies that this country will never have another great yellow fever epidemic.

Paderewski's Musical Bellboy.

Remond Johnson, of Cole and Johnson, composers of that once popular song, "Under the Bamboo Tree," once held a position as bellboy in Young's Hotel in Boston. This place he once nearly lost, through taking the liberty of playing Paderewski's "Minuet" for the great pianist. Paderewski, who was staying at that hotel had rung for a bellboy, and young Johnson answered the call.

Being so fond of music, he made bold to ask the great composer and pianist to play the "Minuet" for him. Paderewski could not understand English then, and the boy thought from his gesticulations that he wished him to play it. So he sat down at the piano and commenced playing. Paderewski's manager happened to enter the room just then, and, enraged at the bellboy's presumption, threw him out of the room and went directly to the management and had him discharged.

As soon as he learned what had been done, Paderewski, who had been pleased with the lad's playing, sent for the manager of the hotel and had Johnson reinstated in his position.—June Savoy Magazine.

Ayer's

Caution to Piano Buyers.

Ever and anon we hear of people in this section who purchase new pianos, and we take opportunity to say, in view of some peculiar inside information that we possess of the kind of instruments that certain presumably reputable dealers intrude upon confiding buyers, that our sympathies have been with the victims. We are not a piano dealer nor an agent, nor have we any present or prospective returns from an agent's sales, but there is one make of piano now being introduced in Chester that is manufactured at York, Pa., and we know it to be one that is a lasting delight to those who have tested its value. We refer to the famous Weaver piano. Mr. Chas. W. Miller of Lancaster, has been placing a number of the Weaver instruments in Chester homes, and we are gratified to observe that an honest competition has entered this market to press out some of the cheaply-built pianos that are imposed on families through gross and slick talk.

The Citizen, Chester, Pa. April 7, 1908.

The above item needs no explanation. It speaks for itself and the moral is plain. Make sure of getting the kind of piano that you want, and the worth of your money by dealing direct with the Weaver Organ & Piano Co., Manufacturers, York, Pa. Write to them and they will either send you a catalogue, prices and full particulars or they will send a representative to give you full description of their instruments, prices and terms. m30 8t

THE JUNE MAGAZINES

GETTYSBURG LADY HAS STORY IN ONE OF THEM.

Another Has a Picture and Pen Sketch of A. J. Cassatt Whose Ancestors are Buried in Co.

Appleton's Booklovers Magazine for June has a charming story by Miss Elsie Singmaster, daughter of Dr. J. A. Singmaster of this place. It is entitled "The Miracle" and is illustrated with a full page picture. It is the story of a Mennonite minister in a Pennsylvania Dutch settlement with some laid in a camp meeting in woods. Appleton's for June is full of interesting articles, "The Truth About Panama," "The Unsolved Problem of Mechanical Flight" and a number of short stories and four beautiful pictures in color of the Outdoor Games of Four Generations, "The Great Grandmother in 1780," "The Great Grandmother in 1830 playing battle-dore and shuttlecock," the grandmother in 1859 croquet and the mother in 1880 archery.

Alexander Johnson Cassatt. Pearson's Magazine for June contains as a frontispiece a picture of Alexander Johnson Cassatt, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, whose grandfather lies buried in the Low Dutch graveyard in Straban township, Adams county. The following pen picture of the man is given by James Creelman:

A stalwart, deep-chested man of 67 years, with a grave but sympathetic face, dark-blue eyes, coarse sandy hair sprinkled with white, straight, powerful nose; fresh-colored cheeks; massive high brow, in which the wrinkles extend gradually down to the deep eye sockets, strong, well-curved, crumpling jaws; a firm mouth, but shrewdly sensitive at the corners, slow in speech, calm, suave, the incarnation of self-control—such is the master of modern transportation, whose methods are being carefully studied by the constructive men of all countries, as he spends hundreds of millions of dollars and controls the movements of scores of thousands of men in a battle with the present and future commercial and industrial problems of the richest, busiest and most complicated nation in the most wonderful and progressive age in human history.

The Traveler's Wardrobe.

One of the burning questions in the female world during the springtime is that of the wardrobe to be prepared for the summer outing. Especially when a woman has not been accustomed to travelling is she fearful of being unprepared in buffet cars or of meeting acquaintances in a strange city who may criticize her clothes. The "New Idea Woman's Magazine" for June anticipates this problem in an article on "The Traveler's Wardrobe," by Elsie Morien, who suggests the costumes suitable for short or longer journeys. For the actual wear and tear of traveling she recommends a "tailor-made costume on severe lines," of mohair, serge, panna or covert cloth, or else a separate skirt of one of the modish invisible plaids in light woollens, worn with a tailored blouse and a long coat of plain material, such as tan covert. In regard to the "trouser" skirts, so well adapted to travelling, the writer says, they "are again worn quite short this season, several inches from the ground, a ankle length, being most frequently seen. However, older women and those inclined to be stout adopt nothing shorter than one and a half inches from the ground. Miss Morien also advises "a complete costume suitable for street wear as well as formal occasions," made of one of the more dressy materials, such as chiffon, broadcloth, or checked or embroidered veiling. This suit is, of course, to be worn with dainty blouses, and the princess skirt and bolero are suggested as a prevailing mode. For longer trips where a sojourn at a large hotel may be included, a dainty complete dress is also a good thing to have, and the article winds up with some notes on kimono and comfortable dressing jackets.

Last Pictures of San Francisco.

Perhaps the most widely interesting feature in the June issue of "Everybody's Magazine" after James Hopper's brilliant first-hand description of the disaster, is Vernon Howe Bailey's series of San Francisco drawings. Mr. Bailey had been traveling through the South and West for "Everybody's," continuing his series "American Cities in Peril." Only a few days before the great disaster he reached the famous coast city and made the drawings which have been reproduced with such extraordinary promptness. Everything which his pen had found to draw is now destroyed, except a fort and a ferry building. Not only San Francisco but all Americans will attach a special significance to these admirable drawings. Will Irwin, in describing the drawings for the readers of "Everybody's," says: "San Francisco, the blithe, light-hearted city by the Golden Gate, the dwelling-place of romance and the gateway to the Ocean of Adventure, is in ruins. There will be a new city in its place; but there will never again be the old San Francisco—sea-gray, picturesque, suggesting mystery and adventure in the vistas of her hills, in the pocket-pictures of her alleys. The greatest disaster that ever came to an American city struck her above and below ground on the morning of April 18th. An earthquake which shook all the lowlands and killed hundreds preceded a fire, perhaps the greatest fire in history. There was no water to fight the fire; and most of the city was burned. One day, it was the gayest city of the continent; the next, it was a ruin."

What Korea Has Cost Japan.

Hardly had we relieved Korea from the domination of China, and that, too, at great cost, when the peninsula was invaded by another power, much more remorseless and cruel, and naturally more dangerous. Russia now took the place of China at the court of Seoul. The ambition of Russia was not to be compared with that of China. Such was its madness that it was not only bent on conquering Korea, but its purpose was to extend its policy of aggression against Japan as well. For ten years we exhausted every means to bring about a happy settlement in order to avoid a crisis and to persuade Russia to change her mind. We tried commercial treaties and numerous other methods of pacification in vain. Finally, in February, 1904, diplomatic relations between the two countries were severed, and the world witnessed one of the greatest wars of modern times. It is evident, therefore, that the cause both of the Chino-Japanese and of the Russo-Japanese war was the independence of Korea. The two wars differ, so far as we are concerned, in details only. With China we had cultivated pleasant relations for two thousand years; as regards Russia, hatred of one hundred years' standing had been nurtured.—By Count Okuma in the April-June Forum.

Red Cloud the Famous Sioux Warrior.

But it is among the Sioux that we find the greatest number of old historical characters. Each year cuts down their number, and soon these old fellows who know of the days before the coming of the white man will be no more. Red cloud is, without doubt, the record holder of the North American chiefs today. His home is close to Pine Ridge Agency. Ninety-one years old, blind, almost deaf, he sits dreaming of the past. No wonder he is irritated by the idle information seeker! Who would be called back from the dreams of his youth? Sightless and infirm, he is living over the days when in his youth he sat his horse as a king the pride of the great Sioux nation. To his ears must come the roar of the hunt as the countless bison herd, like a tidal wave, rolled by; and, again, the great day of his life, when his red-blanketed band swept down on the hapless Fetterman troop. Even now his heart must seem to stand still as he lives over again that day.—From the tribes of the Northwest Plains," by E. S. Curtis, in the June Scribner.

Nautical News.

Heritages.

Leave children an accumulated fortune of memories and inspirations and examples and hopes, so that they are rich in brain and heart and soul and service. Then if you happen to leave them a fortune besides, if they have all these, the fortune will be shorn of its possibilities of evil and will become an instrument of higher and nobler good.—M. J. Savage.

Playmates.

You can't feel good with a disordered stomach. Try Kodol. Sold by L. M. Buehler.

No "Breaking In"

ONE characteristic of the "Queen Quality" Custom Grade Oxfords is their flexible fit. Too many shoes are like the wooden lasts over which they are made—stiff and unyielding. They have to be "broken in." When a shoe is broken to conform to the foot, the original lines must be changed. The shoe thus becomes loose and shapeless. "Queen Quality" Shoes "keep their shape" because they fit perfectly with a flexible fit. The shoe yields to the foot as does a glove to the hand. We have over fifty styles of these superb shoes to show you.

A BLOOD RED LAKE.
Spectacular Manifested by a Sheet of Water in Switzerland.
Lake Morat, in Switzerland, has a queer habit of turning red about two or three times every ten years. It is a pretty lake, like most of the sheets of water in that picturesque country, and its peculiar freak is attributed to a disposition to celebrate the slaughter of the Burgundians under Charles the Bold on June 21, 1476, but the French say that it blushes for the conduct of the Swiss, who in that battle gave the Burgundians no quarter.
This phenomenon, of course, has its legend. The old fishermen of the lake, who catch enormous fish called sturges that weigh between twenty-five and forty kilograms, say when they see the waters of the lake reddening that it is the blood of the Burgundians. As a matter of fact, some of the bodies of the Burgundians killed in the battle were thrown into the lake, while others were tossed into a grave filled with quicklime. This historical recollection angered the Burgundian soldiers of the victorious armies of the republic in 1768 so much that they destroyed the monument raised in honor of their compatriots who fell heroically in that battle, and Henri Martin very justly reproached them for that piece of vandalism.
It would hardly do to attribute the reddening of the waters of the lake to the blood of the soldiers of Charles the Bold. The coloring is due simply to the presence in large quantities of little aquatic plants called by naturalists Oscillatoria rubescens. The curious thing about it is that Lake Morat is the only lake in which this curious growth is developed.

THE TURKISH KALK.
It Once, Closely Resembles the Gondola Than Any Other Craft.
Creedford, the author, to whose skillful pen Constantinople is indebted for one of the most charming volumes ever issued in its praise, has a word to say about the Turkish boatmen and their vehicles, the kalk.
"Constantinople once more," writes he, "to the matchless beauty of the three waters which run together beneath its walls, and much of their reputation again has become worldwide by the kalk. It is disputed and disputed whether the Turks copied the Venetian gondola or whether the Venetians imitated the Turkish kalk, but the resemblance between them is so strong as to make it certain that they have a common origin. Take from the gondola the 'torse,' or hood, and the rostrated stem and the remainder is practically the kalk. It is of all craft of its size the swiftest, the most easy to handle and the most comfortable, and the Turks generally are admitted to be the best oarsmen in Europe.
Indeed, they have need to be, for both the Bosphorus and the Golden Horn are crowded with craft of every kind and made dangerous by the swif-test of currents. The distances, too, are very great and such as no ordinary oarsman would undertake for pleasure or for the sake of exercise. It is no joke to pull fifteen or sixteen miles against a stream which in some places runs four or five knots an hour."
Gardening in America.
Gardening in America has reached what one might call the "backward age." Neither a man nor a country goes gardening in early youth. "Men come to build stately fashions than to garden first," as Bacon once said, and as every garden writing body has repeated until Sir Francis in Elysium must regret he ever made the remark, which now the less is true. Gardening is essentially a middle-aged enjoyment, and America being, as nations go, still young, her garden craft has the faintness of youth. It has its incongruities, inharmonies, and it often mistakes size and expenditure for excellence.—Con-tury.

In the Same Boat.
The Duke of Leeds before succeeding to his title was active in politics.
Once when canvassing he came upon an English shoemaker, whose vote he solicited. "Sorry," said the shoemaker,
"but I'm not going to vote for any bloomer aristocrat. I can't afford it."
"That's nothing," replied the duke.
"I've got five, and they are all girls."
The shoemaker came up and touched him on the arm. "All right, off chap," he said. "You shall have my vote. It seems to me we are both in the same boat, and we'd better stick together."

Doctors and Medicine.
When a doctor does not have much faith in medicine it is a sign that he is a good doctor. The best doctors are those who give good advice rather than medicine; advice that is simple and has common sense back of it. Too many people imagine they can abuse themselves and live a doctor to make them as well as ever for $2. Nothing is it.—Addison's Globe.

Misunderstood.
Former—Where have you been all this time? And where's the old chestnut mare? I don't see her here.
As I told you? I don't know. Law, no, master! I'm a horse! she. Didn't I think thee said "she"?—Addison's Globe.

A Good Character.
A good character is the best tombstone. Those who loved you and were helped by you will remember you when forgetments are withered.
Carve your name on hearts and not on marble.
By imagination a man in a dungeon is capable of entertaining himself with scenes and landscapes more beautiful than any that can be found in the whole compass of nature.—Addison.

A DIPLOMATIC YANKEE TRICK
(Original.)
The Russian fleet had been destroyed by Admiral Togo in the sea of Japan.
The Japanese minister at Berlin sat in his cabinet, evidently waiting for some one. Presently the door opened and a man of the Yankee type entered. The minister closed the door himself, looked about him as if remembering that walls have ears, then said:
"Have you your trap completed?"
"I have, your excellency."
"Very well. It is possible that you may put it to good use. I have secret information that a member of the German diplomatic staff will leave the foreign office tonight bearing an important proposition to the czar. He will be dressed in plain costume, such as a humble citizen might wear. He will take a common cab and drive to the station. It is of supreme importance that he be delayed, so that he cannot communicate either with his own or the Russian government. I have sent you to undertake this task because you have done better work for me than even my own countrymen, who are adepts in such matters. Do you think you can effect what I desire?"
"I can try, your excellency."
"Very well. The messenger goes on the 5 o'clock train. He must leave the foreign office about 4:30. It is now 10," looking at his watch. "Have you time enough?"
"Plenty, your excellency."
At 4:35 p. m. a man left the foreign office carrying a grip-sack. A coachman eyed him sharply as he had been eying every one who had come on,
and, gliding forward, touched his hat, got down from the box and opened his cab door. The gentleman was passing on when he took out his watch, turned and got into the cab. The coachman mounted the box, drawing a long sigh, as if of infinite relief, and drove as ordered to the station. He had no sooner started, however, before he began to press something under his foot, as though pumping. The man within felt a sudden faintness. He had only time to notice spray coming from a tube beside him when he lost consciousness.
When he came to himself he was lying on a couch in a strange room. He felt ill and dizzy. Calling up all his strength, he arose and went to the door, which he found locked. The only window in the room was far above him, but he pulled a table under it and, mounting, looked out at a wall. He knew that he had been trapped.
In the ceiling he noticed an oval place and was wondering what it was when it opened and a tray was lowered through the aperture on which was a supper, including a bottle of wine.
The opening closed immediately, and the prisoner was too absorbed in his misfortune to remove the tray from the floor, but presently coming to a different state of mind he placed it on a table and drank a glass of the wine.
The sun rose and set just how many times he did not know, while he remained a prisoner, eating his meals regularly. At last he lost something of his chagrin and ate as usual. He knew that the necessity for his detention would in time end and he would be released, but would not the destiny of two nations be changed by his imprisonment?

The newspapers of the world were full of the letters to the emperors of Russia and Japan from the president of the United States calling on them in the name of humanity to end a struggle that had virtually been fought to a finish. A telegram in cipher was sent to the German embassy in Russia, directing a withdrawal of a certain proposition that had been recently sent, and a messenger was dispatched to find out why that messenger had not reported. A reply came from St.
Petersburg that no such proposition had been received and that the messenger had not been heard of. Then there was consternation on the part of the foreign office at Berlin. No more important message had ever left the foreign office. Indeed, it was so important that it would not have been accepted unless written and signed by the emperor. In the hands of another power it would paralyze all the government schemes. But there was nothing to fear on this score. It was still in the messenger's hands. Delay only was the object of those who had detained him.
One evening the messenger heard a click in the lock of his door and trying it found himself free. In half an hour he appeared at the foreign office and told his story. The police seized the building in which he had been held, but never traced the person who had detained him.
One morning the messenger appeared at the office of the Japanese minister in Berlin and was admitted to his cabinet. Again the minister looked about him as if for ears. His expression was devoid of pleasure, of fear, of triumph, indeed, of any emotion.
"Has all gone well, your excellency?"
"My country has been saved."
"May I know your secret?"
"You have earned a knowledge of it.
When I sent for you I had been informed by our secret service man in Washington that your president was to speak for peace. From my spies here I knew that the emperor of Germany was about to offer assistance to the czar. If his offer could be delayed till after the president had spoken he would not dare to face the opinion of the world by furnishing support to prolong the struggle."
"Good, your excellency. I suppose the president will get the credit of the peace to come, but I think I have had something to do with it."

Cons-latory.

great. The sufferer danced about and twisted his shoulders, crying: "Let

GODFREY'S TANKARD.
A Seventeenth Century Relic of the Plague in London.
A curious historical relic of London is the large tankard of solid silver presented by Charles II. to Sir Edmund Berry Godfrey for his valuable services during the plague and the fire of London, for which he received the honor of knighthood in 1666. The tankard, which is of plain silver, has a hinged cover and weighs nearly thirty-six ounces. Its front is engraved with the royal arms and the crest of the recipient together with inscriptions in Latin and engravings of scenes connected with the fire, which are still in excellent preservation. The engraving of the posthouse men carrying corpses to the disused plague pit and that of the crowded blocks of houses surmounted by flames are very quaint and curious.
Sir Edmund, who was born in 1621 at Sellinge, in Kent, was a timber merchant, possessing wharfs at Dowgate city and at Charing Cross. He prospered, because justice of the peace for Westminster and member of parliament for Winchelsea. In history, as no reader of Macaulay and Green will need to be told, his name is most famous in connection with his mysterious murder, which was popularly attributed to the zeal with which he had devoted himself to unraveling the alleged popish plot. His body was found in a ditch near Primrose hill, face downward and penetrated by his own sword, under circumstances which precluded
the idea of suicide or robbery.
The excitement caused by this still mysterious event is indicated by the fact that when the funeral procession left the city, with great pomp and pageant, for the burial ground of St.
Martin-in-the-Fields, it was preceded by 70 clergy and followed by upward of 1,000 persons of distinction.

THE JAW AND THE TEETH.
What May Happen If We Continue
Using Soft Foods.
The teeth are really appendages of the skin, and not of the skeleton, as people generally believe. The jaw is formed in accordance with the necessity for providing a hold for the teeth—that is, if there were no teeth to come, the jaw would grow differently, and would not have its present shape. The jaw is not an independent part, as it would like to be; it has to form itself to accommodate tenants with which, strictly speaking, it has no ties of kindred.
The use of soft foods decreases the size of the teeth, and they will ultimately disappear, unless we make more use of them.
As there does not seem to be any likelihood of a change in our habits, we must expect to lose them in course of time. Then the jaw will assume probably another shape. Further, the gums might disappear, for there can be no use for them after the disappearance of the teeth.
The loss of the teeth makes the lips fall in, and brings us near to the Punch form of face! We find it impossible to pronounce sounds, such as t, d, sh, ch.
The change of face, so to say, will certainly lead to a modification of the tongue, and this in turn to the inability to pronounce other sounds.

Atonic Dyspepsia.
The ultimate cause of atonic dyspepsia is constitutional depression. It may be due to overwork, and especially to prolonged worry. Sometimes the dyspepsia is the first manifestation of tubercular poisoning. Again, there seems to be an inherent failure of the digestive organs. Once established, dyspepsia is, in turn, the cause of loss of strength, of mental inertia and visceral weakness. Some degree of simple anaemia is almost inevitable. The exciting cause may be an illness of any kind, the excessive use of tea, coffee or other beverages, the lack of proper food, some error in habits of eating.
Often it is not discoverable.

During the year the new International Encyclopedia was added to the High School library, besides thirty volumes of fiction. Through the efforts of the teachers and the pupils of the A and B Grammar schools libraries have been started in these two schools. The A, Band C Grammar and 1st and 2nd Primary schools all have organs which have been purchased by the pupils and teachers of these schools.

These add much to the interest taken in the subject of music, which has not yet been given its proper place in our school curriculum.

There have been established four prizes for the High school as follows:

The D. A. R. prize of $5.00 given by the Daughters of the American Revolution, Gettysburg Chapter, to the pupil of High School who writes the best historical essay on some subject referring to the Revolutionary period.

The Alumni first and second honor prizes. The first honor prize of $5.00 given by the High School Alumni Association to the pupil of the Senior class who receives the highest average grade in scholarship.

The second honor prize of $3.00 given to the pupil of the Senior Class who receives the second highest average grade in scholarship.

The spelling prize of $3.00 given by the High School faculty to the pupil in the High School who receives the highest grade in spelling.

The above report shows an unusually good attendance, the best in 5 years. It also shows clearly that our patrons are taking a great personal interest in the schools.

We believe that by the co-operation of our patrons and friends our schools can be made second to none in the state.
